The inaugural workshop in a series focused on cutting-edge issues in different global regions, this installment brings together distinguished practitioners in the region to discuss how they see the path ahead for investment arbitration in Latin America. The speakers will debate the significance of human rights and corruption issues in recent investment arbitrations, as well as how the investment protection system may modernize to resolve these and other recurring challenges in Latin America.

This online event will engage the audience in a frank and open conversation about these difficult issues for arbitration in the region.
